SHE ONCE WAS FAIR.

BY MRS. A. L. MCMILLAN.

She once was fair, I hear you say, Her golden hair and eyes of gray
Made in each heart for her a place, And that her sweet and gentle face Was bright as poontide of the day.

You envied her, forgot to pray, Because she chanced to pass your way, Why say you then, with laughing grace, She once was fair?

When I am old, have lost each ray Of beauty's light, Oh, sing no lay Of sad regret; let time efface All that is fair, and weave her lace Upon my brow, but do not say

THE WRECK OF THE STARLIGHT.

BY CHAS. F. WELLES.

The Widow Ralston sat in her rocker by the win dow, looking absently out upon the ocean, where it seemed to meet the sky far, far away.

A few rods from the house the incoming tide was slowly washing back and forth, as it persistently edged its way further up the sands.

Several huge rocks were scattered along to the left, and partly concealed some of the few houses which comprised the fisher hamlet, but offering no obstacle to full view from the cottage of the rickety looking wharf that presumtuously stretched out into the bay, as though ambitious to reach the dingy looking schooner that lay at anchor there.

Mrs. Raiston was not alone. A maltese cat lay purring at her feet, and behind her chair stood her son, a great hulking fellow, drumming idly upon the window pane, his eyes fastened dully upon the grim, rocky headland that formed an arm to the bay and a background to the picture in which the wharf and the schooner were the principal objects As he looked a catboat came stealing around the headland. His face brightened as he saw it. "Here she comes at last," be said.

"Well, I'm glad of it." said the widow, in s rather snapping tope. "That gal most worries me to death, kneckin round in that boat like any

"But she can handle it like a man," interrupted her son, quietly.

"That may be, but you know as well as I do, Jake, that a storm's comin' up. The sky's bin growing darker for an hour or two, an' all such sort o' craft has run in long ago."

Her son made no reply. He had noted, with increasing uneasiness, the signs of an approaching storm, and had stood behind his mother's chair to conceal the anxiety he felt at the non-appearance of the catboat.

But he now smiled complacently as he watched the boat draw nearer, glide along the further side of the wharf and stop.

With a sigh of relief the widow picked up her sewing.

"She has bin over to see that Dunkirk gal, I suppose. Poor child. It must be dreadful lonesom livin' way out on a bit o' rock, with nobody to speak to except when my Jane goes to see her, 'cause you can't count in that crabbed of father o' hers with him away from mornin' till night fishin'." She turned her attention to her work and the busy needle darted in and out of the cloth. A wistful expression crept over her son's face He said nothing, but stared dreamily at the rugged headland, as though something beyond it had touched a warm place in his heart and caused that tender look to illuminate his honest face. His fingers kept moving as busily as his mother' lastin' drummin'. It makes me fidgety. Law Here's Jane now." "Yes, safe home again," answered a girl who had just bounced into the room, laughing at the look of reproach which her mother gave her.

"I'm none too soon, either, I suppose," rather pen itently. "It's going to rain like sixty before long." "Bin over to see ol' Dunkirk's gal?"

"Yes. I must go to see her once in awhile. It ain't often she gets a chance to come ashore. miserable old daddy of hers keeps her as much a ner as ever was Bonaparte on St. Helena." Why didn't you invite me to go along?" asked her brother, in evident ill humor. Jane went straight up to the great, tall fellow and placed her hands on his shoulders. "Now, see here, Jake, you just stop thinking about Bessie Dunkirk. She will never have you no anybody like you. The fact is, she is too good for anybody around here. I have had a good talk with her this afternoon, and I know what I am saying She was awfully sad today, and laid her heart right

She is tired of that old island, she is tired of "She oughter get married," ventured her brother,

"Well, she will never marry you, old fellow, you can just set your heart to rest on that. She aint like the rest of us around here, somehow. Seems to have bin cut out for better things."

"That's so," added the widow, laying down her work. "She aint like the common run o' fisher-men's gals. Too delicate, somehow. She seems out o' place for a fact, but I don't see why, neither. Poor thing, I don't blame her for gettin livin' out on that pile o' rock day after day, where she can't even see a house. Why ol' Bobby Dunkirk can't come ashore an' live among neighb like a civilized being is more than I kin get through

Jake stared gloomily at the headland, for it con cealed the island in question, about two miles be-yond, where lived old Dunkirk and his daughter. and where now she was anxiously awaiting he father's return

Anxiously, not because he had been gone all day for she was used to that, but because the heavens were dark with inky clouds, and the black waters were flashing threateningly far out, and whispe warnings of a coming storm as they fell with

Steadily the darkness increased until the waters were as black as night, save for tiny patches of foam that would appear for a moment and then vanish where the waves were beating against the rocks.

As the darkness deepened the air seemed to become more still and old ocean to beat with a louder sound of warning on the sands.

It was impossible now to see into the fast gathering gloom, and Bessie had retired to the cottage ed on the highest point of the little isle, and, lighting a lamp, placed it in one of the windows facing seaward to serve as a beacon to the one whom she feared was at that moment on those dark waters in his frail boat.

Something was floating there. It was not by the lantern's light that she had seen it; that feeble glimmer was barely sufficient to turn into diamonds the raindrops that fell around her. But the flash of lightning was gone before she could tell whether the object buffeted about was a boat, a piece of wreckage, or a human form.

But the lightning came again and again, and she saw that the dark something was a person at the mercy of the frothing waters, which were rapidly washing it ashore.

She pressed forward to meet it, regardless of the rough waves that swept around her.

Eagerly the girl gazed at the water between her and the fated vessel.

Something was floating there. It was not by the was as much in need of help as this stranger had

> With this harrowing thought beating at her hear she lowered her head and shuddered, as at intervals a crash from the heavens drowned for an instant the continual thunder of the surf and the splashing of the rain.

But her fears and doubts were suddenly set a rest, for the door abruptly opened and her father stepped into the room.

Her cry of welcome died suddenly on her lips as she sprang up to meet him.

rush forward and arrest its course, and yet she could not even move or force a cry from between her white lips.

There was murder in Dunkirk's looks, but she was spared the agony of witnessing the cowardly deed her father seemed determined to accomplish. Again the door flew open. A man rustied in, and, springing at Dunkirk, struck him a territic blow that sent him reeling to the floor. As the relentless grasp was taken from him, the man on the couch whispered faintly: "Fred, Fred, I am so glad you have come," and then fell back

The newcomer stared for a moment at the prostrate fisherman, lying there with closed eyelids, and then, turning to the girl, demanded what it 'all

He was a young man. His clothes were water soaked; his face was twitching nervously.

Bessie sank into a chair, and for a moment cov ered her face with her hands as though to blot out the recent scene from her memory.

"I don't know," she finally said, slowly. "Pather has been injured on his head, and his strange actions made me believe that the wound had deprived him of his reason and filled him with a maniac's desire to kill. But," in a bewildered way, "there must be something else. I don't know. I don't know."

The young man was bending over the elder one

"Is he injured?" he asked.
"No, only exhausted from his battle in the water," and she modestly related her part of the

"But, my father!" she cried suddenly. "Is he hurt? He must be."

Yes. There was a bad wound on Dunkirk's head from which the blood was slowly issuing.

She washed it and bound it up, and then, with the stranger's aid, placed him on a bed, where he lay with closed eyes. "Perhaps I struck him too hard," said the young man, feeling a twing of remorse. "I was washed ashore from the yacht, saw the light in the window and made my way here. Coming by the window I looked in and was horrified at what I saw, and intent only on stopping him I rushed in and served him as I did. He was surely out of his mind."

"Yes," said Bessie, with a strange look, "his actions were those of one not right in his head, and yet seemed caused by sudden wrath at seeing one whom he had not seen for years. He seemed to recognize this other man, for he called him by name, John Foster."

"That is right," said the young man, astonished.

"And the other called him Smeaton."

"What," cried the stranger, springing up in ap-parent agitation. "Smeaton?" He stared at Bessie with the liveliest curiosity pictured on his face.

Then, as with an impulse he could not withstand, he seized her hands and as he pressed them warmly she saw tears in his eys. She looked at him in amazement

"My uncle in yonder room will tell you all about it when he revives," he said, simply.

All night the storm continued, but along in the early morning hours it had spent its force, and the thunder no longer crashed, but rumbled long and heavily, and the visits of the lightning's glare became less and less frequent. The young man refused nourishment or a change of garments, and in his wet clothes remained at the bedside of his companion in misfortune.

In the next room Bessie watched by the bedside of her parent.

All was quiet in the cottage, except for the cheerful ticking of the clock and the singing of the tea kettle, as it incessantly hummed a low but merry tune, in striking contrast to the thunder rolling angrily at intervals, and the plaintive pattering of the rain drops on the window panes.

A light footfall aroused the young man from the reverie into which he had fallen. He was startled for a moment at seeing the girl standing

One of the neighbors had just "dropped in" for a few minutes' chat.

"Wasn't it dreadful ?" were her first words, "That vessel runnin' on the rocks off the island? I just now seen Jane an' Jake comin' this way, an thought I'd come over an' hear what they know about it. Jake has been out to see the wreck, I sup-

A crash of thunder heralded the breaking of the storm, and the vivid glare of the lightning obliter-

Then darkness blacker than before, inside the ottage as well as out, for the light of the lamp had vanished with a gust of wind that, finding an entrance, had rushed botsterously in.

Outside it was roaring over the rocks, driving the rain against the house in a lively tattoo and splashing it spitefully against the window panes

Bessie groped her way across the room to the window where she had placed the lamp. As her and touched it she started back with a cry of fright, while a deafening crash boomed from the angry sky and all the world seemed ablaze with But it was not of awe at the elements that he

He rallied under the effect of a hot drink which Bessie gave him, and shortly afterward, spurred by the necessity of warm and dry clothes, he went into another room to exchange his wet garments suit of Dunkirk's, which the girl had prepared for him.

With the dry clothes upon him he again entered the room, and, feeling his way like one dazed, sank into a chair and closed his eyes.

The girl from her chair watched him closely. He was a man in middle life. His beard and hair were streaked with gray. The rough garments which he now wore illy matched his features, the latter being, though somewhat haggard, clear cut "Law sakes." cried both women in a breath.

Jane shocked her mother by laughing outright.

"She ain't going to have anything to do with his corpse. Old Bobby's remains will be left behind. But nevertheless she is going to England with her father. When one died she found another—this time a real one. Bobby Dunkirk was not her father; he told her so with his dying breath."

"Can't be po-sible," gasped the wildow. "Who is this other father you speak of? But you are crazy, child."
"He is a man that Bessie rescued from the water after he was washed ashore from the wreck. He is from England. Bobby Dunkirk used to live in England, too, and he worked for this man about his place, tending garden or something. But this man, and he is awfully well off, ma, found that Bobby, whose real name, it seems, is Smeaton, was stealing from him, and he had him convicted and sentenced. That made Bobby so mad that when he was free again he watched his chance and carried off Bessie and brought her to America. She was only a little tot then, you know.

"Mr. Foster, that's the name of Bessie's real father, had come over to this side of the ocean in his yacht Starlight on a pleasure trip, and all this might not have turned out so nicely if the rudder had not given out and the yacht drifted helpless on the island. He and his nephew were washed ashore. The others of the party remained on the yacht, and as she has hung together they have all been saved from drowing."

Jane related the rest of the story as Bessie had told it to her. The two women were anaged at the

"The ways of Providence are past finding out," averred Mrs. Collins, solemnly. "But it all works together for good."

"And you, Mister Jake," said Jane, turning to her brother and looking at him in a teazing way, "if you have not taken my advice of yesterday to stop thinkin' about Bessle you'd better do it now and hang up the fiddle forever."

And the sorrowful expression on Jake's homely features, as he gazed gloomily at the headland across the bay, indicated plainly that the fiddle had been forever hung.

Vaudeville & Minstrel

THE AL. G. FIELD BIG WHITE MINSTREIS inaugurated their fourteenth annual tour at the Great Southern Theatre, Columbus, O., Aug. 16, in a triumphant blaze of glory. The spacious auditorium of the Southern presented a pretty sight, packed to the doors, and as the curtain ascended upon the wealth of beauty and artistic coloring displayed in the scenic and costuming effects of the first part, the picture presented called forth a burst of applause from the audience. From that moment, as the good things of the show were dashed out with vim, laughter and applause were the order of the evening. The singing, under the direction of Will Walling, was as nearly perfect as careful attention and study could make it. Messrs. Walling, Sheldon, Prosser and Clifford, with the assistance of a chorus and Madrigal Boys, scored emphatic successes with their choice selection of solos, while the comedians, Al. G. Field, Billy Van, Tomme Donnelly and Doc Quigley, with Dan. Quinian in the centre, kept every one good natured with new and bright witticisms. Mr. Field's new version of "The Black Four Hundred" won for him numerous recalls, the many friends of the comedian seeming loth to part with his imitations of the folbies of the colored upper ten. Tommy Donnelly sang an up to date medicy, and was rewarded with lavish plaudits and a stand of flowers. Billy Van was at his best, and his eccentricities were applauded to the echo. while Doc Quigley proved he was a comedian of merit. The oilo, which is, if possible, the strongest Mr. Field has ever had connected with his entertainment, was started off with gusto by-Eddie Fox's imitations and solos of the light and popular order. Then followed Oilie Young. His performance was greeted with storms of approbation. A new farce by Al. G. Field came next. It was called "A Trip to the Klondike Gold Diglins," and proved to be a laugh producer of no small proportions. Monola and Miller next followed on no horseback, introducing Mr. Field's Arabian horses, Belle and Sul'an. The act was staged by Dan Qu THE AL. G. JOHN MORRISEY.

Who is at present the assistant director of Gustav Walter's Orpheum circuit, was born in Detroit, Mich., in 1858. He served an apprenticeship with Mich., in 1858. He served an apprenticeship with William Wray, an old time variety performer, and was in turn a ballad singer, dancer, black and white face comedian and clown. After this thorough schooling he mingled performing with management, and finally quitted the stage to devote his time entirely to managerial work. He was for a time associated with Manager Thos. L. Grenier, of the Lyceum Theatre, Chicago, Ill., and has also had valuable experience on the road. He also managed The Grotto, in Chicago, during the World's Fair Summer. He is well known in the profession.

Cincinnati.—Thousands of dollars have been put into glit, paint, soap and tapestries during the past Summer, and every manager in Porkopolis is willing to aver that his temple of amusement is the brightest in the West. The improvements all around have in reality been more elaborate than usual, and instead of the midsummer house cleanings there have been several rotable transformations. Not one, but several price parties are promised the grand army of saturement seekers. NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week's Events.—The regular season opened in this city last week, the lights having been turned on in seven houses. With but one exception, however, the plays presented were well tried favorites, concerning which there is little to tell beyond the fact of revival. The weather tried favorites, concerning which there is little to tell beyond the fact of revival. The weather throughout the week was excellent, and the aggregate of business was large. The multiplying signs of prosperity have established confidence concerning the outcome of the new season, and reports from all parts of the country have been very encouraging......"The Whirl of the Town," at the Casino, remained the only continued attreation for the week, but its solitary reign is now at an end, although, according to announcement, the date of its abdication is still remote...... Variety entertainment was furnished at Toxy Parton's, the Union Square, Proctors's, Ollympia, the London, Kostera & Blai's, the ICE Palace, the St. Nicholas, the Central Opera House and the Casino Roof Garden......The nightly excursions and variety entertainments of the steamer Grand Republic were continued......The Garrick-Thrater reopened Aug. 16, when "Never Again" returned for a stay of one week only, other plans made for the early season at the house preventing a longer stay. as the attraction. stage of Harrison Grey Fiske's four act melodrama, "The Privateer," Saturday evening, Aug. 21, this popular house began its second season under the management of R. M. Gulick & Co. The seating capacity was completely occupied and an unusually large delegation of first nighters crowded the capacity was completely occupied and an unusually large delegation of first nighters crowded the foyer and packed the lobby during intermissions. The audience was made itp, for the most part, seemingly, of friends of those interested in the production, and no estimate of the popular worth of the play could be formed from the applause from the lower part of the house. The Star gallery clientel was in line, fortunately, and the expressions of approval from close under the roof counted for more than the uncalled for hubbub set up and continued by the occupants of the seats nearer the stage level. It needed no such demonstrations to acquaint the observer that it was a first performance. The amount of mechanical and scenic bungling was deplorable, and some of the few good scenes were nearly, if not quite, ruined. As a great measure of the play's success will depend on a perfect handling of its scenic equipment, those who view subsequent performances! will have a more perfect illusion to aid them in enjoying the generally acceptable work. It is not likely that the author would lay claim to any originality of theme or novelty in its handling, as its strongest point is nothing more than another treatment of the story of Damon and Pythias, and the general construction of the play is no departure from the melodramas of decades agone. Upon the rescue of a castaway and the efforts of another to supplant his rightful station bangs the story. The true and, as usual, interrupted love; the discarded and faithful till nearly the end mistress; the heroism of true friendship and the final downfail of villainy result, as a matter of course. We learn that Pietre La Parge, a miller, had rescued a waif cast up by the severas before and despoted the child and reared him toyoung manbood, knowing all the time the secret of his parentage from evidence overlooked by the rescue. Edward Marville, captain of the privateer Firedy, on which Gilbert La Farge, a son of the old miller, was lieutenant, came in his ship to the coast of Brittany off oyer and packed the lobby during intermissions the love of the captain's ward, Valerie D'Espiony, whom Gilbert plans to wed. The mill burns, but Andre rescues Jaques and the viliain receives his first set back. The captain is suddenly called away and leaves Lieutenant La Farge in command of the Firefly, from which Bernard Martin had deserted, taking valuable papers from the captain's strong box before his departure. In the search for the deserter Gilbert is successful, and, on a promise to Martin of his liberty and immediate as istance in escaping, gains possession of the ston. documents. These he gives to his mistress, libitense, who is detailed to thrust them in the pocket of Jacques' cost while he is making merry at the village inn. This she does and Gilbert, at the proper time, rushes in, declares that Jacques is about to desert and has him searched, when the stolen papers are disclosed. Desertion is punishable by death and the guards are ordered to take Jacques to the ship, there to be shot at sunrise. Andre offers himself and is accepted as hostage for Jacques' appearance, that the condemned man may spend his last night at home. Two hours before sunrise Gilbert appears at Jacques' house and departs for the ship in the only boat near at hand, figuring that he will thus prevent Jacques' arrival on board ship, with the result that Andre would be executed in his stead. Knowing the loyalty of Jacques, he figured that the condemned man would attempt to swim to the ship, and that while on the water his life could be ended with a pistol ball. Matters work as he foreshadowed, save that the death dealing shot was not effective and Jacques reaches the deck of the ship in time to prevent the execution of Andre. The fail of the curtain leaves one to suppose that a kind providence thwarted the plans of Gilbert still farther and that Jaques would not be shot, and the closing act proves that the captain returned in time to stop the massacre. The play closes with the death of Gilbert from a pistol shot fired by the captain to end a struggle between the villain and And GARRICK THEATRE.—The regular season of this GARRICK THEATER.—The regular season of this house began Aug. 23, with the first metropolitan presentation of "The Good Mr. Best," a musical farce, in three acts, by John J. McNaily. This play had its first production April I. Tast, at the City Theatre, Brockton, Mass., and its story has already appeared in these columns. Upon the present occasion it was presented by Rich & Harris' All Star Comedy Co. The tille of this company is certainly misicading, to say the least. Mr. McNaily has been accustomed to writing his farces to fit. The peculiartities of certain stars of the lesser magnitude, and, as this has not been his scheme in the present instance, the tille of the company was probably selected to convey the information that no star was engaged therein, but that all of the players, so far as this work is concerned, are of uniform importance. The stellar rank would have to be lowered considerably to admit of any other hypothesis. The plot of the play proved to be considerably involved, and much tedious talking was indulged in to make it apparent to the audience. It is true that the dialogue was occasionally enlivened with fiashes of wit, mostly of the slargy sort, but nevertheless laugh provoking. Coarseness, however, is a salient feature of the work, and occasionally this broadens into absolute vuigarity. Some of the songs introduced were well crosen, and so iar as the principal singers were concerned were well rendered, but the chorus was lamentably poor. The settings were pretty and appropriate and some of the costumes were attractive. A decided novelty was shown in the employment of projected animated pictures showing the personages of the play and contributing to the entanglement of the play and contributing to the en house began Aug. 23, with the first metropolitan presentation of "The Good Mr. Best," a musical farce, in three acts, by John J. PROCTOR'S THEATRE.—Despite unpleasant weather this cozy resort was well patronized Aug. 23, when an entertaining bill was presented. Franer this cozy resort was well patronized Aug. 23, when an entertaining bill was presented. Francesca Redding, assisted by Harold Hartsell, appeared in a sketch, entitled "A Forgotten Combination," and was the principal feature of the bill. The sketch, which is by W. L. Lockwood, is well written, and in the hands of Miss Redding and Mr. Hartsell was given an excellent rendition. The Emerald Trio (Casey, Le Claire and Marron) also presented a sketch, which, true to the title of their team, was highly flavored with Irish witticisms. "The Irish Tenants" was the name of the sketch, and the trio easily made it a thoroughly enjoyable laugh maker. P. Richards, a caricaturist, new to the local variety stage, appeared, and by his clever work soon won his way into the good graces of the audience. Louise Bryant, in character changes, came in for a good share of approval, and Howard, equilibrist, earned considerable appiause for his feats in hand balancing. Oth Shattuc and Minnie Bernard, in a sketch, entitled "Mangled," were well liked, and the Fransioli Sisters, in their pleasing duets, soon found themselves on friendly terms with their hearers. Lew Hawkins, in his comedy monologue act, kept his audience in a laughing mood, and Edith Hall, serio comic singer, did well. Sam and Kitty Morton were well liked in their singing and dancing act, and the Blondells, in their sketch, "The Society Kids," were favorites. The Swedish Lady Quartet completed the bill, and won much applause for their singing.

with Whirl of the Town" began on Aug. Casno.—"The Whirl of the Town" began on Aug. 23 the fourteenth week of its run, with a large audience present, testifying to its continued popularity. The one hundredth performance is announced for Sept. 2, when souvenirs will be presented.

KRITH'S UNION SQUARE THEATRE.—The second and last week of "Rally 'Round the Flag," and the continuation of the American biograph, is all that and last week of "Rally 'Round the Fiag," and the continuation of the American biograph, is all that stands in the way of a new bill at this house for the week of Aug. 23-28. Both of the retained features won much applause. The most pronounced factor in the amusement is Fiorrie West, who long ago won her way to favor here. Her songs, always well sung, served to win for her great applianse, and she has the agreeable consolation of having made a distinctive hit. Ray L. Royce was another single enterialiner who made a strong success. His monologue is bright and always well done, and he invariably comes in for strong favor. Backing the clever character work of Harry C. Stanley, the artistic vocalisms of Adel Jackson rounded out their attractive comedicate in excellent style, both of those clever performers winning their way to immediate favor. Edmond Hayes and Emily Lytton returned to scenes of former artistic triump and repeated their hit. Their act pleased immensely, and is worthy of much commendation. In addition to those already mentioned, the bill affords further excellent entertainment in the work of McBride and Goodrich, old favorites here; Bert Jordan, a dancer of high degree; Beatrice Norman and E. J. Mack, the Ventinis, the Allison Sisters, Musical Silvo, Leavitt and Nevello, Marie Leslie, a very clever singing comedienne; Baidwin and Daly, popular Hottentots; Barney Reynolds, and Ross, Noia and Ross. There was a packed house in attendance to Gijo, the excellent bill, and the frequency and abundance of applause told a plain story of much satisfaction. The debut in local vaudevilles of Clara Morris is the feature hung up for next week, Ben Harney, the popular originai of rag time in public: Hayes and Lytton (their last week), and others of merit being promised to round out the bill.

Flovide "The Chinney Corner" as an attractive spot to loiter between finds. Special correspondents for new journalists are provided by the audience, who show how well they like the scheme by frequent applause. Undermeath the Alaskat section the curio features are many and hold the undivided attention of the many seekers after amusement who continually frequent this popular house. D'Almo'a monkeys, surgesting the person who makes the long Northward trip; Walter Wentworth, a contortionist, who would probably do well in twisting his way across the high dride; Alice Granity, an Albino, suggesting the paucity of barbers in the gold fields; Higglins, a rife shot, who could probably protect his hoard of glittaring dust; Lizzie Sturgion, a pianist, who would probably serve as an orchestra at Snow Theatre; Sig. Brauras, a Punch and Judy manipulator, tho might have to eat his figures before he returned, are the objects of wonderment, and turn one's toughts to the domain of ice and gold while awaling an opportunity to witness the spectacle of a Klondyke at home. The house was crowded to begin the week, Aug. 23.

week, Aug. 23.

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—The inclement weather forced the management of this resort to transfer the performance from the roof garden down to the music hall on Monday night, Aug. 23, and, in spice of the unpleasantness of the evening, a good sized crowd was present. O'Brien & Havel, old favorites at this house, were seen in their eccentric comedy act, and, as usual, captured their audiences. Emma Francis, in songs and acrobatic dances, was a new comer, but she soon found herself among the popular ones. Arras and Alice, in their equiloristic act, fully deserved the hearty reception accorded them, and Bennetto, in his posturing act, did well. Conroy and McDonald, with their Irish sayings, songs and dances, were entertaining examples of sons of the Green Isle. The Bland Sisters, in songs and dances, were great favorites, and Johnson and Dean, who style themselves monarchs of the colored aristocracy, were popular holdovers. Reno and Richards, in their comedy bar act, were successful bidders for both laughter and appliause, and the Pantzer Brothers, head to head balancers, won hearty plaudits for their work. A Hungarian band furnished music on promenade during the intermission and before and after the performance.

and decorations have given the house a strikingly bright appearance, the alterations extending from front to rear and into the cafe, and when the work is fully complete the general appearance of the theatre will be attractive in the extreme. The opening portion of the show introduced "A Darktown Outing at Blackville Park," and the fun, music and dancing was furiously fast. Madan Hyer, Frank and Edward Maliory, Smart and Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McIntosh, and a big dancing act provided an oito of uncommon excellence, and the finish, "Thirty Minutes Around the Operas," introducing Mme. Flower and Fred J. Piper, closed a downright clever show in a splendid manner. As is customary with colored shows, singing and dancing forms the greater part of the amusement, but it is all well done, and the audience is kept continually entertained after the most approved fashion. W. H. Isham is business manager; Chas. H. Plummer, treasurer; Harry Stafford, electrician; Mme. Reed, wardrobe mistress; Geo. C. Collins, musical director, and John W. Isham, sole proprietor of the show. H. C. Miner is represented at the theatre, for the season, by Edwin D. Miner; Jas. H. Buken is treasurer; Eddie Weeks, chief doorkeeper; Sam Cooper, advertising agent, and Henry Heimerle, master machinist. Doorkeeper Weeks and the ushers are attired in very attractive uniforms as one of the new features of the season. Next week Joseph Barrett's Burlettists, with Nettle De Coursey the star, will open their season.

Other Mothers and Editort, Hart and Brite, Williams and Adams, Ada Melrose, Carr and McLeon, Millie Bettina, Richard Pitrot, Joe Weish, Keily and Adams. TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE. - The rainfall and TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—The Palmai and abundant promise of more had little effect upon the attendance here Monday, Aug. 23, as the house was filled completely when a new and excellent bill of continuous variety was first displayed. That all in attendance were fully satisfied with the amusement offered was shown plainly in the frequent applause which followed the various specialities, deserved tributes to cleverness in their several lines. The Sidmans provided the star act of the show, and were well rewarded in plaudits for their artistic work. Mr. Sidman's characterization is still finely drawn, and the laughs which invariably follow attest the merit of bright comedy. Cook and Senora are also prominent among the entertainers, their clever act winning for them ample applause and laughs galore. The exceedingly well executed dancing act put forward by Tom Genaro and Ray Bailey won them a strong renewal of past favor, and the comedy element met good responses. Mand Nugent started the last week of her long and successful run in the heartiest favor. Her stay has brought her into prime favor here, and she is not likely to be soon forgotten. All of her songs were applauded, those of her own composition being in the best demand. Another song writer and singer who succeeded in his work was W. R. Williams, who then began his second week, and ternished good comedy, with complimentary results. Miss Nobriga is lusty lunged beyond question, and is evidently bent on providing all the coon melody possible while she has her voice to do it. She nearly raises the roof, and the audience is with her to a man in keeping up the noise when it comes time to applaud. On the other hand, Gertie Gilson has been denied any more than her share of vocal strength, but her songs fetched applause in abundance, nevertheless. Arnim and Wagner are among the other singers in this bill, but they strike a happy medium and produce genuine melody, with the most pronounced success. The bill otherwise engages Dick and Alice McAvoy, Herman and Sophie Korn, t abundant promise of more had little effect upon the attendance here Monday, Aug. 23, as the house was

Miner's Bowert Theatre.—This house opened its doors to the public on Saturday evening, Aug. 21, after having been thoroughly overhauled and brightened up during the Summer siesta. The opening attraction is the Manhattan Club Burlesque Co., a new bidder for patronage in the burlesque line, under the direction of Henry C. Jacobs, and headed by Sam Collins, the well known comedian, whose work is very much in evidence throughout the entire performance. His characteristic me hods for creating amusement were brought into full play, and he can justly be termed the star of the organization. The costumes worn by the ladies of the company are showy, and the performance created a favorable impression. The opening idea, "A Stranger in Turkey," introduces some off employed burlesque characters, but in a novel series of situations, with hypnotism for the supposed motive, Sam Collins, a hypnotic sailor, by the aid of his power inducing the members of the court, as well as his messmates, to perform all sorts of evolutions. Of the supporting company, Bijou Mignon's work stands out prominently, her dancing and singing being generously encored. Marie Bartlett, asthe pride of the harem, and Dan Tourjee, as the sultan, contributed pleasing characters and singing. The incidental musical numbers, and dances by Mr. Collins were interesting, and ied up to a lively fluish. The specialty bill included Jeanette Lilford, comedienne, singer and dancer, whose work was well liked; Carr and Tourjee, in their musical act, "The Vivandieres," who were well received, and furnished many harmonious selections; Marie Bartlett entertained vocally; Warshauer and Mignon, in a mixture of comedy, singing and dancing, which held the stage with good effect. The Manhattan Club Musicale, by Dan Tonrjee, Sam Collins and the Misses Stewart, Narville, Radcliffe and Donna, was amusing, and Collins and Brien, comedy dancers, acrobats

Chicago.-Affairs theatrical in this city look Chicago.—Affairs theatrical in this city look brighter than they have for years. Nearly every one of the enterprises has got on some substantial basis, and the general air of prosperity makes the managers feel very cheerful over the prospects. An unusually large number of outside merchants have been in the city during the past week, buying liberally, and everybody seems to anticipate a general improvement, which cannot help affecting the show business. At the Great Northern O. B. Thayer has taken in Messrs. Hopkins and Wright with him. Mr. Hopkins will be associated in the management of the house. The policy will continue to be the production of grand and light opera with a stock. With this week comes another installment of openings—McVicker's, the Columbia and the Chicago Opera House. The Schiller turns on the lights Aug. 30, and then all will be in full blast. The event of the week is the production of Clay

National Theatre.—The production of "Under the Polar Star" served as an excellent attraction to open his house, Aug. 21. An audience which completely filled the house gathered to see the performance, and the play was, favorably received. This ance, and the play was, favorably received. This followed next week by "When London Sleeps."

Forelaugh? Theatre.—The "stock company at this house appears during the present week in McKee Rankin's "True to Life." With Edwin Holt in the part of the ex-convict, the role of the daughter assumed by Carrie Radcliffe, and the others suitably cast, an excellent performance should be given. The opening week, with "The Power of the Press" serving as the vehicle to introduce the new company, was entirely successful. Good sized audiences were in attendance at each performance, and the patrons of the house seemed pleased with what had been provided. For next week Mrs. Forepaugh has secured the play, "A Social Highwayman," which will be produced by the stock.

The Bloou.—The large patronage at this house continues unabated, and those in attendance last week were eminently pleased with the entertainment. Richmond. — The supplementary season at the Academy of Music, which was inagurated Aug. 16, 17, was not the success anticipated, due in a measure to the increasing popularity of the vaudevilles at the suburban parks and the rather weak attraction offered. "Humanity" will be presented 24, followed by Al. 6, Field's Minstreis 25.

FOREST HILL PARK.—Th—re were several reasons why this favorite resort did an immense business last week. Lillian Bariow returned and duplicated her former excellent impression, winning fresh laurels each night. She and her husband, Augustin Neuville, have been retained for another week. Oscar P. Sisson and Esther Wallace scored heavily, and are also retained. In addition to the above, the Rossley Bros., Koppe, and Walton and Doyle will constitute the bill for week of 23.

BROAD STREET PARK.—Horace F. Smith has succeeded Henry J. Crewe in the management of this resort. Mr. Smith will at once correct many faulty conditions and start the Park on a new career. The company for week 23: Tom Peasley, John Starr, Rooney Sisters, Reinhart Sisters and the American Trio.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON.

Seattle.—At the Third Avenue Theatre John P. Howe's Co. opened a week's engagement Aug. 8, when "An American Girli" was given for the first five nights, to good business. It was replaced 14, 15, by "A Western Politician," a five act drama, by Melvin G. Winstock, of this city, which was its first production on any stage, and, from the applause and curtain calls, one would judge the piece will be very successful. The Nashville Students come, for five nights, 18. Wright Huntingdon's Co. will open the regular season Sept. 5.

SEATTLE THEATRE.—Francis Powers' "First Born" will be seen here 19-21.

State Association's Outing.

We have given the necessary facts in regard to the various events as summed up at the time, but since then being in receipt of a full official report of the details we select a few additional points, as at least of passing interest.

The most important of these items would appear to be the way the settlement of the tie for the Ottendorfer could be also assert in that the Manhattan C. C. could be also the cup for the coming year on account of the original tie at Murray Hill between Lipschuets and Steinits proves a mere assumption without foundation in fact or equity. The official report (Albany Journal, 14th inst.) goes on:

"One game was ordered played to decide the tie, and this also resulted in a draw. The board of managers then decided that a match of three games should be played to decide the abiding place of the cup. The first, Aug. It, at the Staten island C. C.; the second, Aug. IS, at the Manhattan, and the third, Aug. S. gaplate the contest in the cup will remain in the hands of the Association for the year." That seems to be explicit enough tor any body.

What occurred at the Staten Island C. C. does not apposed.

the year." That seems to be explicit enough for any object. That seems to be explicit enough for any object. The transfer of the date named; but The Brooklyn Eagle, 12th, comes to the rescue. We do not follow its report verbatim, but the important points are:

The committee draw up the above order and served on all concerned a copy in writing, officially signed, H. J. Rogers, president. The secretary of the Association, however, in writing to the M. C. U., inadvertently stated that the first win would conclude the match. This was, of course, an error, as Mr. Hodges later saw, and tried to withdraw the letter, but his request was refused.

The leading officers of the Manhattan Club repaired to the S. I. C. do. on the day named (1th inst.) and claimed that the match be decided according to Mr. H. sletter. The dispute was ultimately referred to the executive committee of the State As'on. No game was played, therefore, on that day, but an imprompt entertainment was arranged for the benefit of the visitors. We await the TEE. ARNNWORTH CUP* was another interesting and altogether agreeable addition. The Journal Save: "At a business missing. Aug.

tainment was arranged for the benefit of the visitors. We await the outcome with much interest.

Was another interesting and slivegether agreeable addition. The Journal says: "At a business miseting, Aug. 5, resolutions on the death of ex. Vice President-visoring C. Farnaworth, of Suffaio, were adopted. Mrs. Parasworth presented to the Association a large siter foreign county of the Association about prescribe. The cup will be known as the Farnaworth Cup, and will probably become the property of the person who wins it three times. As before stated, Prof. Howard J. Rogers, of the State dep't of instruction and chess editor of The Albany Journal, won its initial possession. The thanks of the As'on were voted to Mrs. F, for her beautiful gift.

"The official utterances, too, of the succes of the gathering, a suncess even beyond the most enthusiastic anticipations, stamp the affair as of historical importance. It proved a red letter event in the history of the N. Y. S. O. A. The playing strength this year exceeded anything on our records, and we doubt if any meeting, except an international chess congress, ever presented the most satisfactory ever visited by the Association. "The grade of chess was very high, especially in the inter-State match, where some beautiful and brilliant chess was played. This match was the feature of the event, and a most successive innovation. It is the desire of the Association that a similar contest be arranged every year."

"MRS. BOWLES (hon. sec. Ladies' C. C.) has rendered a great service to the cause of chess by organizing this splendid tournament. It is less than five years ago that enforced leisure, consequent upon the recovering from a lilness, afforded her the opportunity of learning the moves of chess; and, having mastered the elementary principles, she became at once a great enthusiast in the game. She joined the Ladies' C. C., then newly formed, and at once took an active; art in its development. For the past two years she has been either its match captain, its secretary or its treasurer—occupying, indeed, all bers of the club are so perfectly satisfied with her ladors on their behalf that they have left her no alternitive but to continue her work, though the task is almost beyond her strength. We have already referred to her inception of the idea of a Jubilee international Ladies' Tournament, but the amount of work she has got through in carrying her ideas into effect is simply prodigious. Not less than 2,000 leiters have been written by her own hand during the last twelve months in connection with the tournament, and this in addition to her other chess work. She is full of good chess idea, so for actual play are restricted, owing to the pressure of her chess work in organising and managing the club and the tournament. She won the third prize in the second class of the Ladies' Tournament at Hastings.

"We heartly congratulate Mrs. Bowles on the success of her spirited endeavors to prove that women can play chess. We delight in every forward movement of the game, and are sure that the arousing of feminine interest in chess will tend to keep many a male votary true to his love for the game, who under other circumstances might have passed out of the ranks. W. ROBERTSON, who has been prominent as a batsman and bowler in California cricket circles during the past seven years, has returned to Australia. He made his farewell appearance with the Bohemian eleven against the Pacific eleven Juiy 18, at Golden Gate, Cal., the match being set apart for a testimonial benefit to him. There was an excellent attendance, and the captain of the Bohemian eleven received a substantial reminder of his last match in California. The Bohemian team won by a score of 205 for four wickets to 109. E. G. Sloman and W. Robertson made the highest scores for the winners, the former being credited with 99. William Robertson made the highest scores for the winners, the former being credited with 99. William Robertson made a remarkable record as a batsman and bowler during the past seven seasons. As a batsman he ranked as one of the best in California, being credited with scoring individual innings of 206 runs, not out; 155, 141, not out; 136, 132, 124, 116, not out; 106, not out; 106, not out; 106 and 100, during the past seven seasons. His score of 206, not out, was made July 29, 1894, when he and A. G. Sheath put on 340 without 106-80 of w Witket-Tor the Bohemian Club, in a championship contest with the California Club, this being the largest total in partnership on record in America. He accomplished many wonderful bowling feats, one of the most noteworthy being the capture of seventeen wickets for 29 runs, including eight wickets for only 8 runs in the second inning, for the Bohemian Club against the Alameda Club June 21, 1896. He met with an accident in a street car collision several months ago, that at the time threatened to permanently disable him, but he has since fortunately showed that it had no disastrous effect on his batting or bowling. On the previous day, it will be remembered, in a trial against time at one mile, he reduced the English record from 1m. 40s. to 1m. 39 ½s., since which date he has further lowered the world's record to 1m. 37 ½s., as noted in another part of this issue. On 23, at the North London track, R. P. Claik created new tricycle records from two miles to one hour, inclusive, he completing in o.e. hour 25 miles 825 yards, the previous fastest performance being 23 miles 920 yards. Clark's time for twenty-five miles was 58m. 55 ½s., the best previous having been Ellis' 1h. 3m. 46 ½s. On 11, 12 W. J. Neason's road record from Edinburgh, Scot., to London, Eng., 2th. 38m., was beaten by John Hunt, whose time was 26h. 46m. On 12 Miss Foster, the well known lady road rider, st. loceded in again lowering the record for the ride from London to Brighton and return, the new figures being 6h. 23m. 58s., or 13m. 51s. better than Mrs. Ward's best previous performance. On 13 Mrs. Ward again essayed to create a new road record for the journey from the general post office, in London, to Goventry, and she completed her task in 5h. 44m. 50s., being 18m. 27s. better than the record credited to Mrs. Grace.

Michael Makes a New Record,

About twenty thousand persons assembled at the track at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., on Saturday aftertrack at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., on Saturday after-noon, Aug. 21, to witness the match race of thirty-three miles between Jimmy Michael, the Welsh wonder, and J. F. Starbuck, the Philadelphia long distance rider. The weather was favorable for good work on the wneel, while the track had been speciwonder, and s. P. Statuck, the track had been specially prepared for the event, and was in first class condition for racing. Michael was the favorite for the match, as his record warranted, but there were quite a number, principally visitors from the quaker city, who fancied Starbuck's chance, and were willing to accept the odds offered freely by the supporters of the Welsh figer. As on the previous occasion when Starbuck appeared on this track, he was unfortunate in having pacemakers who were inferior to those that were employed by Michael, a fact that was demonstrated pioyed by Michael, a fact that was demonstrated very soon after the race was started. Each contestant had thirty-two pacers, manning triplet, quadruplet and sextet machines, who took up positions on the track shortly after five o'clock r. M., the start being delayed in the hope that the wind that prevailed early in the afternoon would quiet down, which it did to some extent. The start was made at 5.35 from a standing position, Starbuck having the pole; but Michael's triplet took the foreigner to the front at once, the pace set being very rapid for so long a contest. Starbuck's team, however, brought him to the foreater a quarter mile had been traversed, but then made the serious mistake of running away from him, the consequence of which was that Michael regained his lost advantage, and at the end of a mile Jimmy was leading by a good distance, which he afterwards increased at his leisure, the poor pacing of the American proving a decided set back to the latter. It is unnecessary to describe the race in detail, as Michael had it his own way thenceforward, and had it not been for the cross wind that interfered with his work the world's record might have been beaten. As it was, he got within record figures for competitive riding at the end of the fifteenth mile, and created new records for that style of going until the finish, making 30 miles 295 yards to an hour, against the former competitive record, 27 milles 1,960 yards, and accomplishing the f the former competitive record, 27 miles 1,600 yards, and accomplishing the full distance in 1h. 6m. 14%s. Tincler Again Beats Conneff.

If any doubt as to the superior ability of George B. Tincler over Thomas P. Conneff as a runner existed it must have been dispelled on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 21, when these men met in a match race of one mile, for $500 a side, at the Worcester race of one mile, for $500 a side, at the Worcester (Mass.) Oval. According to a dispatch "Tincler won by a remarkable burst of speed, and he is credited with the fast time of 4m. 15/sc. Conneil was twelve yards behind at the finish, and his time was 4m. 20s., which is as good as he expected to do. At the pistol shot Tincler darted to the front, and led the way to the first quarter in 59s., with Conneil eight yards behind. The half was reached in 2m. 1s., and the third quarter in 3m. 8s. Tincler finished fresh and strong. After the race he said he could have lowered W. G. George's professional record of 4m. 12/sc., if he thought he was a oclose to it. He said the track at the oval is the best in the world, and he would like a chance to try for the record on it." the record on it.'

race, half mile, between E. C. Bredin, of England, and Charles H. Klipatrick, of this city, the result of which has already been given in our columns, from The Sporting Life of London:

Klipatrick stooped forward, restling on the two fingers of his left hand, while Bredin held himself erect and easily. The American was up and off like a flash. The movements of the English athlet appeared slow by comparison, and when he took his second step he found himself a yard or so in rear of his rival. This advantage the American increased into a couple of yards and when the took his second step he found himself a yard or so in rear of his rival. This advantage the American increased into a couple of yards and the two first hand to the turf, and not in the usual manner of right hand inside. When the pair straightened out, at twere, Klipatrick had increased his advantage to three yards, and still another three feet was added to the lead at the lower turn. Round the bend and up the "back stretch" the pair raced, but strive his unnost Klipatrick could not get any further away, and when the first circuit of the track—quarter of a mile—was made the gap parting the runners was four vards. The leaser's time was 5% Like a veritable shadow Bredin tuck to his rival, and when the pair got into the long stretch again the Englishman began to overhaul his adversary. Fifty yards from American's lead to a couple of yards. The latter seemed to feel that his antagonist was creeping up to him, and, taking a hasty glauce over his shoulder, he sought to get away from his fate. In doing this the American appeared to cross his feet, and he certainly lost two or three by the foolish operation. By the time that the runners had reached the lower turn less than a yard parted the two pedestrians. There was noting of the feeler business about the race. Bredin did not drop and take "the stereotyped blow, after getting the measure of his man." The Englishman kept straight on about his businesses. He knew the man, that he was dealing with. Death of Tim Donoghue.

Timothy Donoghue Sr., the well known maker of scuils and sweeps, died suddenly on the morning of Aug. 19, at his home, 17 Grand Street, Newburg, N. Y. Death was attributed to disease of the heart, from which he had suffered for some years past, and which had attacked him while in attendance at the National Association regatts in Philadelphia, recently. Deceased was born in Ireland, and was brought to this country by his parents when a child. In early life he became known locally as an oarsman and an experiskater, and thirty years ago was one of the best known patrons of rowing sport in the country. From before that time up to the day of his unexpected demise he seldom failed to attend every rowing event of importance in the States, while his oars were used by most of the leading professionals and amateurs for many years past, their superiority having been demonstrated in many a stubbornly disputed contest on the water. During the War of the Rebellion; he served his country as an officer in the Thirty-sixth New York Volunteers, his record being a creditable one. His wife died last year, and he is survived by four sons and four daughters. Joseph F. Donoghue, the ex-amateur champion skater, and his daughters were at home when he died. Jamese A. Donoghue, another son, who has gained some reputation as a skater and amateur a thiete, is now a member of the New York police force, while Charles H. is in the customs service, "Tim?" Donoghue was a very genial and companionable man, and his death will be sincerely regretted by many people in Newburg and elsewhere.

JOE CANNON, well known as a Thames waterman, died during the week ending Aug. 7, at the Kingston, Eng., Workhouse, of which he had been an inmate for a considerable period. He obtained an enviable reputation as an amateur sculler in his youth, afterwards joining the professional ranks, and was also well known as a 'cyclist when the old ordinary machine was in its prime.

The National Association of Amateur Oarsmen will be thus officered during the ensuing term: President, W. C Jupp, Detroit; vice president, Water Stimpson, Northus Cambridge, Mass; secretary, Fred Fortmeyer, New York; treasurer, R. H. Pelton, New York.

John McKay, of Datmouth, N. S., and N. H. Johnston, of St. Stephen, N. B., have been matched to row a double-scull race with the Lynch Brothers, of Halifax, N. S., om Oct. 7, for $400.

Heavy showers the previous day put the Saratoga track in wretched condition for the afternoon's racing Monday, Aug. 16. The card suffered from racing Monday, Ang. 16. The card sunered from withdrawals in consequence, and the sport was materially impaired. Small fields and not overly exciting racing was the rule, although the sport seemed to be much enjoyed. Trolly, Good Times, Gibraltar and Havoc were winning favorites, the talent suffering defeat only in the last race, when Allie Belle, at 20 to 1, defeated the choice, La Goleta, in the last furlong of the distance. New York vs. Philadelphia.

The New Yorks had a narrow escape from defeat by the Philadelphias on Aug. 17, at the Polo Grounds, this city. They had an apparently safe lead and an assured easy victory when the visitors went to the bat in the ninth inning, and for a few minutes made things lively and gave the locals a scare. The big lead obtained earlier in the game saved the home team, however. Up to the ninth inning it had been a rather tame affair, unworthy the name of a contest of skill for supremacy. In fact, it was too one sided to be interesting. In the ninth, however, the Phillies, who had been as pigmies in "Si" Seymour's hands, roused themselves from their lething is tate, and like mighty glants awatted his delivery all over the field. It was not one of those batting streaks the visitors develop every once in a while in their mad rush down the league chute. It is not often that they do much damage, but it is awfully harrowing to the nerves of the anxious home "rooters" to see the Quakers break loose in such an unceremonious way and at such uneassonable times. Seymour did not lose his head; if he had the result, in all probability, would have been disastrous. He kept putting the bail over the plate, and the visitors kept pegging away, but the end came before they had piled up runs enough to win. A great throw by Van Haltren to Joyce, cutting off Geier, who was trying to reach third from first on a single by Lojole, probabily prevented the Phillies from tieting the score in the ninth, as a triple bagger and a single followed the out.

The New Yorks again won on Aug. 18, thereby making it three straight victories over the Quakers, although the latter outbatted and outfielded the locals. Rusie's delivery was freely batted throughout; in fact, he had not received such a drubbing hefore this season. With all their heavy batting they could not bunch their hits to any extent. Wheeler was also touched up in a lively manner by the home team. The all around work of bavis was a feature. His three hits included two triple baggers, and he accepted ten out of eleven chances at short. Glesson, too, put up a fine game at second base. The other long safe hits were a triple bagger by Delehanty and doubles by Lajole, Nash and Van Haltren. Wilmot replaced Holmes in left field and made a sensational running catch of an apparently safe hit.

Baltimore vs. Brooklyn.

The poor Brooklyns sustained another knockout argument at the hand of the champions on Aug. 17, at Baltimore, Md. Pitcher Joe Corbett gave them a punch in their solar plexus that took all the fight out of them. Corbett was very effective, allowing out of them. Corbett was very effective, allowing the "trolley dodgers" only three safe hits, which, aided by some loose fielding on the part of the locals, enabled the visitors to score three runs. Payne pitched good bail in a majority of the innings, and, although he was freely batted, he kept the hits well apart until the seventh and eigh h innings, when the Baltimores bunched their hits to good advantage. The visitors put up a perfect fielding game, but were very weak at the bat Keeler led in batting, while the only long safe hit was a triple bagger by Kelley.

Inability to bat Hoffer's delivery was the chief cause of Brooklyn's defeat on Aug, 18, when the champions succeeded in scoring their third consecutive victory over the visitors. Hoffer was in fine form and allowed the Brooklyns only three safe hits, two of which came in the first inning, and, with a base on balls and a sacrifice, two runs resulted. In the remaining eight only one single hit was made off his delivery. Dunn did good work against the champions, but his support was poor. Only one run was earned off his pitching. Bunting and base running on the part of the home team were features.

Boston vs. Washington.

The Washingtons scored an unlooked for victory over the Bostons on Aug. 17, at Boston, Mass. The latter's defeat is attributed to their wretched fieldlatter's defeat is attributed to their wretched fielding and the timely batting of the visitors. The work of both teams was poor, but that of the home team proved most damaging. The Bostons seemed to be sure winners until the ninth inning, when, after two men had been put out, the Washingtons made four runs, putting them in the lead. In the last half of the ninth, with two hands out, the locals got two men on the bases and Tenney at the bat. The latter met the ball squarely and drove it toward the outfield, and only for a wonderful stop by O'Brien Boston would have at least tied the score.

The Bostons had an apparently easy time in defeating the Washingtons on Aug. 18, when they succeeded in shutting out the latter without a run. For four innings the game was close and interestesting, both pitchers being effective. In the fifth the locals developed a batting streak, and after that the result was never in doubt. Lewis proved a puzzler to the visitors, who made only three safe hits including a double bagger by Selbach, which was the only long safe hit of the game. Mercer was freely batted, the home team bunching their hits to good davantage after the fourth inning. In the fifth inning Long was hurt by being hit on the arm with a pitched ball and gave way to Allen.

Philadelphia vs. Cincinnati.

Philadelphia vs. Cincinnati.

Another defeat was recorded against the Philadelphias on Aug. 19, at Philadelphia, Pa. This time the Cincinnatis were the victors. A misjudged fly ball by Dowd in the third inning enabled the visitors to score two runs, when they should have drawn a biank. Still, the Phillies had several opportunities to win; in fact, they did get a lead after that, but only to lose it again. The Cincinnatis put up a good game, both at the bat and in the field, their batting being very timely. The long safe hits were tripie baggers by Lajoie, Cross and McPariand and doubles by Hoy, Corcoran and Nash. The fielding of Corcoran and Cooley was a feature, the first named accepting all of tenchances at short.

The Phillies treated their friends to a surprise by winning one of the two games booked for the afternoon of Aug. 20, at the same time breaking their long and monotonous string of defeats. Wheeler pitched a fine game, and had the Cincinnatis guessing until the eighth inning, when their hits, two out and an error by Cooley gave them two unearned runs and thereby saved a shut out. The game was full of petty kicks and wrangles. Umpire Kelley called for an officer to put Ewing off the grounds, fined Taylor, Clements, Peitz, and Ehret, and put the laster out of the game. Dwyer pitched the first inning for the visitors and then gave way to Ehret, who was removed from the game in the sixth inning for refusing to throw the ball to the umpire, and Catcher Peitz succeeded him and prevented the locals from making a safe hit. The long safe hits were a home run by Shugari, a triple bagger by Delehanty and doubles by Lajole and Nash. CINCINSARI. 7. R. B. O. A. E. | Phila. T. R. B. O. A. B. were somewhat glimmered by the loss of another game to the Philadelphians, Aux. 21, when these teams met for the final game of their series. Orth proved a puzzler for the visitors, who made only five singles off his delivery, and only in the fifth inning did they get a man past first base. Rhines started in to pitch for the Cincinnatis, but, as the Phillies developed batting streaks in the first and fifth innings, he was replaced by Dwyer. A home run drive by Lajole when two men were on the bases was a feature. The other long safe hits were a triple bagger by Dowd and a two baser by

The Chicagos found little trouble in carrying off The Chicagos found little trouble in carrying off a trophy in their game with the Washingtons on Aug. 19, at Washington, D. C. Clark Griffith proved an enigma to the home team, who could solve his curve for only five safe hits, including a double and triple bagger. King proved rather easy to the visitors. He served out all styles of shoots, drops and curves, but they had no effect on the Chicagos, who bunched their hits at opportune times. Dahlen retired at the end of the third inning on account of a sore leg. Everitt was sent to third base and McCormick shifted to short. The long safe hits were triple baggers by McCormick, Lange and De Montreville, and doubles by Lange and O'Brien.

The officials of the Washington Club have devel- | oped some excellent players in the past year or two, and the indications are that they did not miscue in their judgment when they selected James McJames to star in some of the leading roles with the stock company which will play all the baseball comedies and melodramas in the major league race for the company which will play all the baseball comedies and melodramas in the major league race for the pennant. McJames is looked upon as one of Washington's "finds," and he has certainly given evidence enough in the pitching line to satisfy even the most skeptical person that he is able to hold his own in the fastest company known in the national game. McJames was born at Williamsburg, S. C., in 1873, but his father, who is a medical practitioner of renown, took up a residence at Charleston when the subject of this sketch was at a very early age. Young McJames began his ball playing on the team of the University of South Carolina, of which institution he is a graduate. He is very intellectual and entertaining, and is popular with all who know him. His professional career began with Petersburg team, of the Virginia League, in 1894, and he had a very successful season. He was re-engaged for the season of 1895, and started off that year as though he meant to eclipse his preceding season's work. On May 4, 1896, he allowed the Norfolks only three safe hits, and on May 6 he repeated the trick against the Richmonds, but, although the Petersburgs made six safe hits, the Richmonds won by 1 to 0. Shortly after that McJames received a painful injury to one of his hands, that put him out of the game for some weeks, and after he resumed work he was again hit upon the injured hand, out it did not wholly disable him.

Although he participated in thirty-six champion-ship contests, he did not do as good work as he did the year before. Now and then his pitching gave evidence of superiority, but he seemed to have lost the year before. Now and then his pitching gave evidence of superiority, but he seemed to have lost his grip, although in the last few games he pitched some wonderful ball, striking out twelve and thirteen men in two games against the Richmond team. It was that good work that attracted the attention of the officials of the Washington Club, and Manager Schmelz signed him for his team of 1896, he participating that season in thirty-four championship games, and although he won only eleven of them he was credited with some excellent pitching performances. On July 2, 1896, at Boston, Mass., the locals made only two safe hits; July 30, at Brooklyn, N. Y., he held the home team down to five safe hits; Aug. 6, at Boston, he allowed the Bostons only four safe hits; Aug. 25, at Washington, D. C., the Cincinnatis made only four safe hits of him; Sept. 15, at Washington, he prevented the St. Louis Browns from making more than two safe hits; Sept. 15, at Washington, he held the New Yorks down to three safe hits, the Washingtons winning by 7 to 1. He participated in two twelve inning games last season, loaing one to the St. Louis Browns and winning one from the Philadelphias. His best bliching performance thus far this season was the holding the Chicagos down to three safe hits and shutting them out without a run in the second of the two games played July 5, at Chicago, Ill. Twice this season he has held the Louisvilles down to four safe hits.

New York vs. Louisville.

As fine an exhibition of pitching as has been seen in this city in many a day was witnessed by fully five thousand enthusiasts on Aug. 19, at the Polo Grounds, this city, Jouett Meekin and W. H. (Dad) Clark, the irrepressible ex-New Yorker, pitching in the first game of the final series between the New York and Louisville teams. They were so effective that only one run was accored in the contest, the locals getting it. Meekin was practically invincible, only three safe hits being made off his delivery and he being very steady, a wild pitch being the only misplay charged against him. Clark, too, pitched a spiendid game, and his old associates found him a hard problem to solve. It was a great duel of head work, centrol and speed. Not a base on balls was charged to either pitcher, the gloomy weather greatly alding both men in their good work. Meekin outpitched Clark, because he had greater speed than had the latter. Tiernan made his reappearance with the home team and replaced Holmes in left field. He made the only run, and was credited with a two baser, which was the only long safe hit of the game.

"Si" Seymour proved an easy mark to the Louisvilles on Aug. 20, when they easily reversed the above result. Seymour was batted so freely during the first three innings that he was replaced by Sullivan at the beginning of the fourth inning. The latter also came in for quite a drubbing, but managed to keep the hits well apart except in the sixth inning. Frazer was very erratic in his delivery, giving eight men their base on balls and hitting another batsman with a pitched ball, in all giving nine men free passes to first, but he was generally very effective when a hit was needed to send in runs. The locals were woefully weak at bat.

Baltimore vs. Cleveland.

The Baltimores received their first shut out of the season by the Clevelands on Aug. 19, at Baltimore, It was a well played game, and only for two costly errors on the part of the home team the vis-itors would also have been blanked as not a run was earned. Both pitchers did excellent work. Amole pitched his first game for the home team on this occasion, and he may well feel proud of his maiden effort. A sensational one handed catch by Quinn of a line ball from Olympre his teath according.

Brooklyn vs. St. Louis,

Brooklyn vs. St. Louis.

The Brooklyns signalized their return home by defeating the St. Louis Browns, tailenders in the pennant race, on Aug. 19, at Brooklyn, N. Y. It was a remarkable contest, inasmuch as the umpire was kept busy some little time in convincing the piayers that what he said he meant. After distributing a few fines among them, and removing Grady from the game, the players gave in. Grady waited under the stand to get satisfaction from the umpire, but when that official showed a willingness to settle the matter that way Grady concluded he had had enough and retired. Fisher pitched good ball and received excellent support, while that was freely batted by the home team. The long safe hits were a home run by Harley, triple baggers by Lally, Hallman, Griffin and Anderson, and doubles by Anderson (twice) and A. Smith.

Boston vs. Pittsburg.

The Bostons put up a stiff game on Aug. 19, at Boston, Mass., when they had the Pittsburgs for opponents, and, by maintaining their playing ratio of 16 to 1, had all the best of the argument. Nichols was simost invincible, allowing the visitors only five safe hits, and his support was perfect. A base on balls to Brodle, followed by a triple bagger by Smith, gave the Pittsburgs their only run. That was the only base on balls given by Nichols. Hawley was freely batted, as was Tannehill, who succeeded him. The other long sate hits were a home run by Duffy, and doubles by Hamilton and Collins.

The Bostons, inding the Pittsburgs such an easy thing, took advantage of the occasion to increase their percentage in the pennant race by scoring another victory over them on Aug. 20. Killen was batted hard from start to finish. Kiobedanz, after the first inning, was a puzzier to the visitors, who could do nothing with his delivery, which was backed up in almost faultiless style. Harry Davis was put out of the game for expressing his dissatisfaction over a decision rendered by Umpire O'Day. Gardner replaced him. The long safe hits were a home run by Collins, and double baggers by Donovan, Padden, Davis, Tenney and Stahl.

The Pittaburgs had an excellent chance to win the final game between these teams. Aug. 21, but although they outbatted the locals they could not bunch their hits to as good an advantage as did the leaders in the pennant race. The visitors had a good lead when the Bostons went to the bat for their half of the ninth inning, and a victory looked certain for them, but a disastrous mult by Donovan put a quietus to their chances. In that inning two men were out, but Boston, on two singles and three doubles, aided by Donovan's mult, piled up six runs and turned an apparent defeat into a brilliant victory, amid the wildest enthusiasm.

FIELDS & LEWIS. THE COMEDIAN, FORMERLY OF CAUTION TO MANAGERS:

Hereafter I will be in no way connected with Mr. Lewis (either as a performer or manager), as we have dissolved partnership. I have been informed that Mr. Lewis intends to continue with a new partner, under the name of FIELDS & LEWIS or LEWIS & FIELDS. Managers playing this Act under the impression that they are getting the original "Team," are mistaken. So be careful. I have signed for the coming season with FRED RIDER'S NEW NIGHT OWLS CO., and will, in conjunction with LEW H. CARROLL (formerly of O'Brien and Carroll), do one of the strongest Comedy Singing and Talking Acts before the public. The previous reputation made by both of us, individually, warrants this assertion. Respectfully yours,

	Boston vs. Louisville.
	The Bostons were credited with two victories over the Louisvilles on Aug. 23, at Boston, Mass., when they played a double header. The opening same was all w, sleepy and listless, the Louisvilles losing through the wretched fielding of Stafford and Doian, their errors being responsible for all the runs made by the home team.
	Nichols and Hill each pitched a remarkably clever game.
	Three hits and one earned run were made off the former, while six safe hits and no earned runs were made off Hill. A double bagger by Wagner, followed by a single by Nance, earned a run for the visitors in the first inning. After that only one safe hit was made off Nichols.

New York vs. Cleveland.

New York vs. Cleveland.

The New Yorks defeated the Clevelands on Aug. 23, at the Polo Grounds, this city, under the most discourage, and the Polo Grounds, this city, under the most discourage, and the polo Grounds, this city, under the most discourage, and for five innings it looked decidedly gloomy for the local team, but the national game is nothing if not uncertain, and this fact was fully demonstrated before the game was called at the end of the seventh inning, on account of darkness. The game opened tame enough for the local enthusiasts, but the concluding innings furnished excitement enough to salisfy almost anybody. It was not until the fourth inning that the New Yorks began to get they cut a wide swath; in lact, they set a pace that proved too fast for the visitors, and turned an apparent defeat into a brilliant victory.
